

First Stage Mockups

The following series of mockups presents a cognitive flow scenario for the redesign of vCommons vTweet section based on the Heuristic Evaluations and user survey replies.

The work here presents a more intuitive view with prominent information and subdued containers. The layout of information is more in line with necessary layout gathered from users through the survey, which is also posted in the vCommons sample section on OakenDoor.com, and initial user testing after review findings.

Flow focus is on the home page and menu as well as an alternate view of the mega-menu by selecting Groups.

Problems solved included:

- Better Information Architecture of information layout, including the introduction of a mega-menu concept.
- Leveraging the Twitter archetype
- Leveraging the LinkedIn archetype
- Removal of redundancy
- Better finability
